Involuntary manslaughter dropped

By Erick Enriquez
Police Writer

Jackson County State's Attorney Chuck Grace Monday dismissed both counts of involuntary manslaughter against six Checkers employees charged with the Feb. 5 death of SIUC student Jose Waight.

Grace dismissed the counts of involuntary manslaughter because of a lack of medical evidence, he said.

Checkers bouncers still face lesser charges

Grace also refiled criminal charges of aggravated battery, battery and reckless conduct against former Checkers employee Edmund Bart, whose case was dismissed Sept. 20 because of a lack of medical evidence.

The six men charged are: Edmund Bart, 23, a senior in psychology from Aurora; Steven Crawford, 22, a senior in advanced technical studies from Tampico; Charles Hicks, 22, a senior in marketing from Jacksonville, Fla.; Jeffrey Judd, 23, senior in civil engineering from 'real Springs; Martin Todd Lew., 24, a senior in political science from Benton; and Richard Wojcik, 23, a junior in administration of justice from Carbondale.

The indictments against Jeffrey Judd and Richard Wojcik have been dismissed altogether because of insufficient evidence to convict on any criminal involvement, Grace said.

Lewis and Hicks still are charged with aggravated battery, battery and reckless conduct, and Stephen Crawford is charged with battery and reckless conduct, Grace said.

Last month a pathologist said his review of autopsy results indicated that anyone in contact with Waight before he was on his feet talking, fighting and throwing people around would not be responsible to cause his a-phixial death.

Bart had been charged with two counts of involuntary manslaughter

New formula redistributes FEMA money

By Emily Priddy
Politics Writer

After nearly a month of debating, Illinois lawmakers last week convinced the Federal Emergency Management Agency to change its money distribution formula to help flood victims in large states.

The original formula put large states at a disadvantage, Gov. Jim Edgar said.

FEMA promised 90 percent reimbursement for flood cleanup and rebuilding costs to states whose losses totaled $64 per person statewide.

Other flooded states would receive 75 percent reimbursement under the original formula, Edgar said.

The formula put Illinois at a disadvantage because of its large population, Edgar said.

"Regarding cleanup costs, I am astounded that the FEMA policy discriminates against Illinois communities. In your discussions with Midwest governors, there was never even a hint that some states might receive extra help and others would not," Edgar said in a letter to President Bill Clinton earlier this month.

FEMA spokesman Carl Suchocki said the new formula gives 90 percent reimbursement to all disaster areas if the total damage equals one-tenth of 1 percent of the gross domestic product.

Suchocki said the new formula does not replace the existing formula, but is an alternative for large-scale disaster situations that could affect the national economy.

"FEMA determined that the scope of the disaster was so great that it had the potential for having a dampening effect on the entire national economy," Suchocki said. "As a result of that, the president (created) this second standard to address those disasters that would have a wider impact than just a state economy."

The revised formula is a victory for Illinois politicians, who have

Student leaders want renters to voice opinions

By Christian Kennerly
City Writer

Student leaders encouraged Carbondale renters to voice their opinions on the future of off-campus housing during a press conference Monday at the Student Center.

Mandatory inspections of rental property and zoning regulations are two primary issues to be discussed at a public hearing of the Carbondale Rental Property Licensing Task Force in City Hall tonight at 7 p.m.

Susan Hall, president of SIUC's Graduate and Professional Student Council, said she wants the student body to play an active role in determining the final regulations.

"I would like to see students who have an opinion about the need for mandatory licensing to come to the public hearing at City Hall," she said.

The Undergraduate Student Government will have a rally at 6 p.m. in the SIUC free forum area, followed by a march to City Hall for the hearing.

USG president, Mike Spiwak, said the proposed regulations need to clearly state that occupants need to be notified before an inspection.

The proposed regulations concerning building code inspections stipulate: only a notification of the tenant or landlord, Spiwak said.

The new regulations could be used to check student dwellings for non-building code violations

Softball thinks spring in hibernation

By Grant Deady
Sports Writer

The Salukis' fall performance brings visions of a bright spring as SIUC downed SIU-Edwardsville and Southeast Missouri State last weekend.

SIUC bit the dust in game one with the Salukis as SIUC pounded out 10 hits and 16 runs. Only six runners crossed the plate for the visiting Cougars due in part to the strong pitching of Saluki freshman Jamie Shuttek.

Shuttek allowed just five hits while finishing the fall schedule with a 4-4 record on the mound and said that making the transition to college softball hasn't been that difficult.

"I felt a little pressure at first, but everyone helped me out and made it easy to adjust," Shuttek said. "I think we came out of the fall season pretty well and proved that we can compete."

Head Coach Kay Brechtelsbauer had some high praise for her freshman phenom and said that Shuttek has an outstanding desire to win.

"I'm very pleased with Jamie Shuttek. She's a competitor and she'll find a way to win," Brechtelsbauer said. "She's going to be in the lineup and is giving the team a boost as a freshman."

In game two, SIUC capped off its fall season with a convincing win over SEMO, 6-0.

This time it was the Saluki bats that stood out as SIUC smacked 11 hits. Jenny Klotz, Becky Liss and Maura Hasenstab all went 2-for-3 while Shuttek had one hit and four RBI's.

The win improved the Salukis fall record to 10-5 and redeemed their loss to SEMO in last year's tournament.

Brechtelsbauer said that both games were big wins, but game two was much more impressive in terms of team execution.

"The first game, I can't say I was thrilled with it. I'm not sure how much we earned and how much they gave us," Brechtelsbauer said. "I was pleased with game two. SEMO is a good team and I feel good about the way we finished."

SIUC will now begin an offseason that is full of individual training in preparation for the spring schedule.

"This week we will meet as a team and after that they're on their own," Brechtelsbauer said. "We'll sit down and go over the specifics so that they can practice it correctly."

The team's winter conditioning will include a variety of personal skill drills and cardiovascular training.

Netters' skills undergo changes in fall season

By Jan Leahy
Sports Writer

The SIUC women's tennis team bulked up on playing time by participating in their second consecutive tournament this past weekend at the Middle Tennessee State Fall Classic.

Saluki head coach Judy Auld said her team showed signs of improvement, which is all she is looking for.

"If we peak right now, that won't do us any good at the end of the season," Auld said.

"The main thing is to improve a little each week and build on that," Leesa Joseph and Liz Gardner combined to make a strong showing at No. 2 doubles for the Salukis.

The duo polished off the No. 2 seeded team from Mississippi State on their way to an appearance in the finals.

In the finals, Joseph and Gardner ran into the No. 1 seed from the University of Kentucky, which resulted in a 4-6, 1-6 loss to the Wildcats.

In other doubles action, Irene Feofanova and Julie Milota lost 4-6, 3-6 in the second round after a first-round bye.

Melissa Siatta and Jenny Rubin also lost 2-6, 2-6 after a first-round bye.

Auld said the doubles teams have to improve on the basics if they are going to be successful.

"If we peak right now, that won't do us any good at the end of the season. The main thing is to improve a little each week and build on that."

—Judy Auld

"They have to get the basics down," she said. "Getting first serves in, knowing when to come to the net, all those little things really make a difference."

In singles play, Irene Feofanova went 0-2 at the No. 1 singles position.

Auld said Feofanova is typical of a player trying to adjust to No. 1

Punky QB McMahon leads Vikings

Los Angeles Times

They had a brand-new coordinator, but a quarterback who is used to beating the Green Bay Packers no matter who calls the plays.

And Jim McMahon, the quarterback the Minnesota Vikings picked up in the off-season to teach them how to win, did not fail Sunday.

With Brian Billick only one week into his new job as offensive coordinator replacing Jack Burns, McMahon ad-libbed a 45-yard pass to Eric Guliford to set up the Vikings' game-winning field goal with six seconds left to play.

"There's a handful of guys who have the kind of personality, the kind of experience, the kind of intelligence to not let the pressure get to him," Billick said.

"Jim's done that his whole career. That's the consummate reason Coach (Dennis) Green was so emphatic about bringing Jim McMahon in here."

McMahon, the former Chicago Bear, San Diego Charger and Philadelphia Eagle, won his ninth consecutive start against the Packers. The last time he played in a loss to the Packers was 1983, when he was a second-year pro with Chicago.

He has also won 18 starts in a row against NFC Central teams (not including Minnesota).

"Had I played any better, I don't think it would have been that close," McMahon said of the game. "I'm not happy with not scoring points. That's my fault."

With Troy Aikman, Emmitt Smith, Joe Montana, John Elway and Randall Cunningham all taking the week off, you probably could have predicted sloppy offensive football. You would have been right.

Right along with the field goal festival, that other symbol of inconsistent offensive play — the fumble — was in abundance and very influential Sunday.

For example: — The Bears turned three fumble recoveries into touchdowns, including a fourth-quarter fumble return for a touchdown by Myron Baker from eight yards out.

Baker also recovered an Anthony McDowell fumble in the second quarter on the Tampa Bay 24 and, eight plays later, the Bears scored a touchdown to put them ahead for good, 7-3.

Indianapolis linebacker Jeff Herrod cemented the Colts' victory over Cleveland when he recovered a Vinny Testaverde fumble in the end zone for a fourth-quarter touchdown.

Seattle linebacker Kevin Murphy stripped Bengal tailback Harold Green in the end zone as Cincinnati tried to run a sweep, and Rod Stephens fell on the ball for a touchdown with 4:26 to play that turned the game in the Seahawks' victory over the Bengals.

A fumble by Phoenix rookie tailback Garrison Hearst, recovered by linebacker Pat Swilling on the Cardinal 24, set up the Detroit Lions' first touchdown.

Wade Wilson looked fine leading the New Orleans Saints through a 3-0 start, but the Saints always seem to get off to 3-0 starts.

Sunday was the real test, the crucible that Bobby Hebert, Wilson's predecessor, never

SIUC volleyball star Heyne awarded MVC week honors

By Kevin Bergquist
Sports Writer

The SIUC volleyball team is back above the .500 mark on the season (7-5) and Deborah Heyne is a big reason why.

The 6-foot junior middle blocker from Rochester, Minn., helped the Salukis to two weekend wins, and for her efforts she was named the Missouri Valley Conference player of the week.

Heyne had 41 kills, 21 digs and hit .330 in a loss to Louisville and MVC wins over Northern Iowa and Drake.

She also tallied three service aces, three blocks and seven block assists.

SIUC head coach Sonya Locke said it was an honor Heyne has been deserving of for some time.

"To be honest, I wish she had gotten it sooner," Locke said.

"She has been working really hard.

"She has kind of been playing out of position, but she is making the most of it and doing something for the good of the team."

In SIUC's upset of Northern Iowa Friday, Heyne threw down 12 kills, and had three digs to go with a .360 attack percentage.

Her 14 digs and six block assists in SIUC's win over Drake Saturday night were both season highs.

In 10 of the Salukis' 12 matches this season, Heyne has checked in with double figures in kills.

Heyne leads the team in six categories: kills (169), attack percentage (.333), block solos (14), total blocks (45), aces (17) and block assists (31).

GERMANY PRESSES FOR LEAD U.N. ROLES — The German government has accused its political opposition of obstructing its vigorous recent efforts to land a permanent seat on the United Nations Security Council. Foreign Minister Klaus Kinkel, who plans to press Germany's campaign for Security Council representation in New York this week, charged opposition Social Democrats Friday with thwarting those ambitions by refusing to help amend the constitution to allow easier participation by German troops in international military operations. For two years after German reunification in 1990, Bonn denied any desire to join the five permanent members on the Security Council.

COLLABORATORS AFRAID OF PLO RULE — The people of the village of Fahme are admitted collaborators, Palestinians who have provided information about fellow Palestinians to Israel's secret services and army. Driven out of their homes and villages, often by violent Palestinian gangs waging a war against suspected informers, the residents of Fahme live in a protected camp, guarded by Israeli troops, and they are armed with Israeli weapons in their homes and whenever they leave the village. The prospect that outside their gates in a few months will be an independent Palestinian government, with thousands of its own policemen and its own jails and justice system, brought no cheer, only fear to Fahme.

COURT FACES HONORARIA BAN DECISION — Tuesday is the deadline for the Justice Department to ask the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia to reconsider its March 30 ruling declaring that the honoraria ban for federal workers is unconstitutional. The government has been beaten at nearly every turn since the ban on off-duty, outside writing and speaking by federal workers was imposed two years ago. Various courts have upheld the National Treasury Employees Union argument that the ban is vague, unconstitutional and overbroad. Nobody has officially said the ban is also stupid, but that is what a lot of people think.

EX-HOSTAGE RETURNS TO LEBANON — Former hostage Tom Sutherland returned to Beirut, Lebanon, for six days this summer accompanied by NBC News' Fred Francis for a report to be seen on Wednesday's "Now with Tom Brokaw and Katie Couric." Sutherland, released two years ago by the Hezbollah, will be seen meeting with Hezbollah leaders — "not those who held him hostage," says Francis — who told Sutherland he "was a victim of political circumstances."

FEDERAL SAVINGS PLAN GROWTH CONTINUES — Federal and postal workers who aren't socking away money in their tax-deferred thrift savings plan are members of a minority group—a potentially impoverished minority group. When the noninvestors retire, all things being equal, they will have about one-third to one-half the income of their colleagues who are taking part in the thrift savings plan, Uncle Sam's in-house version of a 401(k) plan. Seventy-two percent of the employees hired after 1983 who went into the new Federal Employees Retirement System (FERS), and 40 percent of the workers in the old Civil Service Retirement System are contributing via payroll deduction to the savings plan.

DESIGNERS MAKE COMPUTERS STAND OUT

That new computer you just might buy — all you care about is the processor speed, hard-disk capacity, screen resolution and other benchmarks of performance. Right? Don't fool yourself — you also care how it looks. Computer companies know that for a fact and each year spend millions trying to seduce you with shapes, colors and textures. To a greater or lesser degree, most everyone in the computer industry plays Jai game: Try to make your product stand out through the look and feel of the hardware. Get buyers to ignore competitors' machines just as they would walk past a drably packaged detergent on a supermarket shelf.

Poetry prize promises pay, prominence

By Stephanie Moletti
Entertainment Writer

Some would say SIUC graduate Maureen Mills has the luck of the Irish — her poems about the electric winds that sweep over the country's hills won her an award.

Her writing made her the first recipient of $100 from the John Keats Poetry Prize College and University Competition in 1989.

Mills had written a series of poems about a trip she took to Ireland, and "Connemara, Ireland," was the poem from the series which won.

Mills said the poem displayed the mystery and shadow of Ireland.

"There are these electric winds in Ireland and when they hit, people have these strange experiences," Mills said.

Her poem depicts these strange experiences.

"Television does a good job displaying reality," she said.

"My understanding of the purpose of poetry is that it should keep the mystery. There are so many things you can do with words in poetry that you can't do in an essay or short story."

Submission deadline for this year's contest is Nov. 1.

Mills said she entered the contest in hopes of getting her poems published.

"You have all these poems and you want some one to read them and publish them," Mills said.

Mills said Dominic Tomasetti, sponsor and director of the awards program, planned to publish an anthology of the poems which won after the contest was underway.

Before Mills started writing poetry she wrote post-modern fiction. Mills said she has returned to post-modern fiction until the poetry begins to flow again.

"I don't know what's going to come out of it," Mills said.

"My elder son writes poetry so, I keep up on it through him."

Mills is an assistant marketing manager at the University of New Mexico in Albuquerque and graduated from SIUC in May 1989.

She said she recommends students to submit their poetry to the contest.

"Winning is a good ego boost," she said.

The competition is open to any student attending a U.S. college or

Women gaining ground in TV news

By Erika Bellafiore
Minorities Writer

Minority journalists have become more visible on the nightly news in the last few years, and women correspondents will continue to increase while other minorities will progress inconsistently, an SIUC official predicts.

For the last 10 years Joe Foote, chair of the SIUC radio-television department, has conducted a study to track the visibility of women and minority correspondents at ABC, NBC and CBS.

CBS has the best record of hiring minorities, Foote's study concluded.

Foote said there is a universal frustration among minority correspondents because they do not believe they have been given quality assignments that will translate into visibility.

Visible means having a beat assignment and being seen on the nightly news consistently, not a general assignment, where the reporter covers many areas, he said.

According to the study, women's on-air appearances jumped 33 percent last year. In all, women reported 21 percent of nightly news stories in 1992, compared to 14 percent the year before.

In 1992, six minorities finished in the Top 50 of evening news correspondents. They included an Asian-American, a Hispanic and four African-Americans.

"1992 was the best year for minorities, especially for black correspondents," Foote said.

"For eight years nothing happened and this past year there were some profound changes."

Jacqueline Adams, correspondent in the northeast bureau of CBS news and one of the most visible minority correspondents in 1992, said she thinks the study is great and it has helped many correspondents.

"It has been my observation that CBS has made a deliberate attempt to hire more women and minorities as a reflection of society and because we are good," Adams said. "The Foote study has confirmed this."

The first signs of upward mobility of women in the news department was in 1991, Foote said.

In 1992 the trend of women correspondents

Russian students view different quality of life

By Sean L. N. Hao
International Writer

Visiting Russian scholars said SIUC students have a higher quality of life than students in their country have who receive free tuition, housing and monthly benefits.

Seven students from the region are studying at SIUC this fall under the Freedom Support Act Fellowship Program.

Yulia Ivanchook, a 22 year old from the Ukraine, said the services and facilities available to SIUC students are incomparable.

"We have nothing like the Student Recreation Center to go swimming or to do other indoor activities," she said.

The equipment also is better at SIUC, said Diana Batkaeva, a 24-year-old from Astrakhan.

"The technology, text books, and classroom facilities here are very good — especially the computer labs; there is a lack of computers in my country."

Batkaeva, administrator for an English language teaching center,

Educational systems diverse, incomparable to United States said the improved curriculum and equipment gives SIUC students a more complete education.

"Students here have more time to attend classes and do homework and are free to study more thoroughly because of the curriculum and equipment," she said.

Russian students typically go to class six days a week for five to eight hours a day, Ivanchook said.

"Because of the large amount of homework, students often ignore classes," she said. "Telling the teacher you're not prepared is a usual thing and they understand."

"Since results come out at the end of the semester, students mainly study before finals."

Batkaeva said Russian undergraduate students can choose the university but not the curriculum.

"They cannot choose professors or drop classes," she said.

"Nobody asks what they want to study, they just get a list of classes:

"When they become juniors and seniors they can decide on their second major and have a little more control over their studies."

"In Russia there are a lot of obligatory disciplines...there is a hodgepodge of courses like history of the Communist Party and atheism."

—Gulnara Bekiyeva

Gulnara Bekiyeva, from Elizovo, said SIUC students have more flexible schedules.

"You can choose your classes and change your major," she said.

"In Russia there are a lot of obligatory disciplines."

"There is a hodgepodge of courses like history of the Communist Party and atheism."

Bekiyeva, said she was interested in studying English, but also had to study physics and mathematics.

"Proficiency in these courses was unnecessary but I got good grades anyway because I wanted to get into another school," she said.

Russian students normally start their education at age seven, entering elementary school. From there, they enter a secondary school, then high school. Depending on grades and test scores, they then enter either a university or a technical institute.

Batkaeva said getting into a Russian university can be very competitive.

"A desire to enter a university is not enough," she said. "You have to pass several exams and have to have very good grades because there are at least 20 people applying for each position."

Depending on grades, students also get a monthly stipend in addition to tuition, Batkaeva said.

"They do not pay for studies at all," she said.

"Tuition and housing is paid for by the education or city administration and students don't need to buy books, they get them from the library."

Ivanchook said Russian instructors interact more with students.

"The distinction between faculty and students is larger here."

"Our teachers know our families and talk about our friends and things like who is married, pregnant or dead," she said.

The seven graduate and post-graduate students will be studying higher education administration during their year-long stay.

Ivanchook, who graduated from the Pedagogical Institute in Kiev, said she looks forward to studying at SIUC because there are no classes in this field in Russia.

Because there is no training in this field, Batkaeva said most people working in education administration in Russia were originally trained as teachers.

Airline for smokers sets high standards

TUESDAY MARKS THE PREMIER FLIGHT OF Freedom Air, a charter plane reserved primarily for smokers. The first departure will be a round trip flight from Chicago's O'Hare International Airport to Los Angeles International Airport. Ted Hall, one of the companies founders and a retired United Airlines pilot, said the fact that only 40 people have signed up for the flight does not discourage him from seeing a bright future for the company.

Hall said it was years of suffering at the hands of non-smokers and their regulations that prompted him to sink $200,000 of his own money into the formation of the company. Thanks to these devious regulations, smokers now have a chance to fly and smoke in the friendly skies. Apparently the idea is not confined to Hall's brilliant thinking. He said he has received calls from smokers all over the country in support of the company.

PATRONS OF FREEDOM AIR WILL HAVE TO follow some of the same guidelines required by law for regular airlines. For example, there will be no lighting up until the plane is in the air, no smoking of cigars or pipes and no smoking in the bathrooms. These regulations, while restrictive of the freedom to smoke at will, provide for safety and order on an otherwise rule-free airline.

Hall said the idea of creating an airline to serve as a smoker's haven came to him in 1988, when the first restrictions on smokers were initiated. He said he became tired of huddling in hard to find smoking areas with other smokers, and decided to take action. The plane for the charter is rented from American Trans Air in Indianapolis, Ind., which will also provide pilots and crews.

WHETHER OR NOT THIS IDEA WILL TAKE OFF and prompt other airlines to go back to the good ole days of cloudy cabins remains to be seen. Hall said he hopes even if it does not, he will continue to provide smokers with a pleasant alternative to a system restrictive of the freedom to smoke. Questions regarding the necessary ventilation systems have been raised, but the airplane's manufacturer said there should not be any problems.

The plane will hold 150 passengers, and plans to conduct numerous flights during the holiday season are under way per request of several potential customers. If extended routes, which entail long term flights, should prove necessary, Hall said a variety of cuisine will be made available to passengers. Included among the list of possible eateries are cheeseburgers and french fries; these seem to be logical choices for an entourage of smokers. After all, if they are going to expose their bodies to the dangers of smoke why not serve them fried food, too?

PERHAPS IN AN AGE OF HEALTH CONSCIOUS conformity, people should make room for those who choose to be less concerned with their health. By allowing frequent flyers to smoke to their hearts discontent while flying from one destination to the next, nonsmokers can not only quit staying up late wondering if they will be forced to sit next to a dreaded smoker on their next plane ride, but also rest assured that while they are fighting crowds, smokers will be enjoying a greasy cheeseburger and steak fries.

It seems a round of applause is in order for another American entrepreneur who saw his dream go up in smoke and followed it literally. Hall said he encourages interested nonsmokers to take part in the fun of flying Freedom Air, after all what do they have to lose? As people continue to search for new and interesting ways to make money and cling to their bad habits, the skies may become crowded with competitors searching to join Hall's pack, but until then there will only be one way to fly the smokey skies.

Rally scheduled at City Hall

Help us fight for decent, safe, and affordable rental property in Carbondale. Join us on campus at the Free Forum (next to the parking garage) at 6 tonight for a rally and march to City Hall to attend and speak at the public hearing held by the Rental Property Licensing Task Force.

Mandatory inspections and rental property licensing could be the key to improving the quality of housing in Carbondale.

It is imperative, however, that we not allow the focus and purpose of licensing to be twisted into enforcement mechanisms used to force students into substandard neighborhoods or as tools for use by the Carbondale police to crack down on students hosting social events.

The proposed mandatory inspection and rental property licensing ordinance must clearly state that it is to be used solely for the purpose of detecting and correcting building code violations, not violations of occupancy limits in R1 zones or any other city ordinance violations.

Anything less will leave students exposed to harassment and blatant violation of their right to privacy.

—Bill Hall, director of Landlord-Tenant Union

Those avoiding use of crosswalk should learn rules

OK, I've had enough! I'm on the verge of losing control. For those of you who think you are invincible, guess what?

You're not!

There are plenty of crosswalks on this campus. Please use them. For those of you who come flying out of no where on your bicycles; go find a Rules of the Road and learn how to ride a bike on the roadway and not through the crosswalks.

I should not have to stop for an extra few hundred crazies who are willing to risk life and limb in the path of an object that out weighs them by a ton or so. You are now in college.

Use that brain and think of the consequences that may result should you become squashed.

I do not want to have to be responsible for someone else's ignorance. —Sandy Jenkins, senior, psychology

Health care costs always heaped on private sector

The government wants to guarantee health care. Why does it seem that whenever the government reforms something it is more powerful than before the reform took place?

The costs for this guaranteed right will be paid by the private sector that we hope will hire us upon graduation.

This is just one more expense that government, in its rush to help people, has heaped on the back of the private sector.

These are the options that businesses have:

- 1.) Hire nobody until they know for sure what the cost will be.
- 2.) When they do hire it will most likely be part-time, not full-time to avoid as much as possible the cost.
- 3.) Raise the price of the product they produce or sell to pay this new expense.
- 4.) Fire employees.
- 5.) Think a little harder about moving to Mexico.

The best health care plan I have seen yet is in Proverbs 3: 7, 8. The good thing about this plan is that it is free, but priceless. Always has been always will be.

ISC World Soccer Cup includes U.S.

The headline of your article on Friday, Sept. 17 "Foreign Students Compete" is inaccurate and misleading.

Of the 16 teams competing for the ISC World Soccer Cup, 12 have at least one U.S. player.

In fact, there are 2 U.S. teams—U.S. Victory and U.S. Salukis. The soccer tournament is open to all SIUC students irrespective of race or nationality.

month for medical and dental coverage, Baggott said.

Comparably, student insurance is much cheaper than that of employment insurance and benefits, he said.

"You'd never be able to buy cheaper coverage with this standard of quality," Baggott said. "Clinton won't be even be able to pull that out of his hat."

While the care is quality and the cost is low, the catch for students is that they must be enrolled at SIUC at the time of their condition, he said.

If students were enrolled in the spring semester, decide to take the summer off and enroll for the following fall semester, they are not covered for the summer without paying the optional fee, he said.

However, students are offered an optional plan for summer coverage, which does not include on-campus benefits, such as the Wellness Center, Health Service, dental care and sports medicine, Baggott said.

aggravated battery in a public place, battery and reckless conduct.

Waight, a 24-year-old freshman from South Holland, died of asphyxiation following the confrontation.

Kevin Green, president of the Black Affairs Council, said he met with Grace Monday and discussed the dismissal of the charges.

"Let it take its course," he said.

Green refused to make any further comment.

Mike Spiwak, president of the SIUC Undergraduate Student Government, said despite the fact that the charges were dropped, someone still is responsible for Waight's death.

"I was disappointed the charges were dropped, but at the same time I can see why," Spiwak said. "Grace just didn't have enough evidence to bring forth involuntary manslaughter charges against these individuals."

"The fact remains that Waight is dead and somehow someone is responsible," he said.

Grace said the forensic medical evidence shows the acts of the defendants which can be proved by eye witness testimony was sufficient to cause Waight's death.

In considering the defendant's involvement and all the circumstances including medical opinion, there is nothing to prove beyond a reasonable doubt that there was either intent or reckless disregard in Waight's death, Grace said.

Susan Hall, president of the Graduate and Professional Student Council, said she is frustrated that Waight died and no one is going to face involuntary manslaughter charges.

"I'm bothered that there is no evidence to support involuntary manslaughter charges," Hall said. "I find it incredible that no witnesses that came forward provided information that linked any of the defendants to the direct cause of death."

Hall said if someone has evidence pertinent to the case which would link any of the defendants to the cause of death, they should come forward.

"Justice may not be served without their assistance," Hall said. "Without witnesses the involuntary manslaughter charges will remain dropped and there will be no prosecution on those charges."

Grace said there does not appear to be sufficient evidence to show negligence in Waight's death.

A coroner's jury in March labeled the death of Waight accidental after almost five and a half hours of testimony, but a grand jury indicted the six a few days later.

Each man pleaded not guilty to the charges filed against them during a court appearance in April.

campaign for a more equitable plan since FEMA announced the funding system Sept. 2, said U.S. Sens. Carol Moseley-Braun, D-Chicago, and Paul Simon, D-Makanda.

"Senator Simon had led the Illinois Congressional Delegation to urge a change in the formula so Illinois would not be short-changed," David Carle, Simon's press secretary, said. "He wrote a letter to the president, and the president, 10 days later, announced a new policy for this and future disasters in which states will qualify for the federal match."

Edgar commended the delegation's efforts to boost flood funding.

"I want to particularly thank our congressional delegation for its assistance in winning reversal of the earlier decision that would have provided Illinois and its local governments with only 75 percent federal reimbursement. The delegation's support in convincing the White House that it was unfair to treat flood-stricken states differently was invaluable," Edgar said.

State Sen. Jim Rea said he is pleased with the cooperation local, state and federal levels of government have shown in their efforts to help flood victims.

"There's already a lot of pressure upon the local area, and this is going to help alleviate some of those pressures. This has been a good example of tremendous cooperation of people at the local, state and national level working together," Rea said.

Edgar emphasized the new formula's benefit to river communities.

"This will mean millions of dollars in assistance to flood-stricken communities that valiantly fought the Great Flood of '93 and are now taking up the daunting challenge of rebuilding and recovery," he said.

U.S. Rep. Jerry Costello, D-Belleville, also said the revised FEMA plan would provide considerable help to flooded areas.

"This is tremendous news for flooded areas in my district and the entire state. Many local governments, facing the burden of rebuilding from the flood, could not afford a 25 percent cost share for repair of public facilities," he said. "This new rule means they, along with the state, only have to find 10 percent of the total cost of repair."

Do You Know What Your Insurance Covers ... and What It Doesn't?

Students may be unaware of some of the following facts that affect their coverage under SIUC's Student Health Program.

- Students must be enrolled to be covered.
- If not enrolled during the summer, students must pay an optional fee to be covered.
- All pre-existing conditions prior to coverage with SIUC are not covered.
- If students must leave mid-semester because of a medical condition, they are covered for 52 weeks after the first day of medical expenses.

"It (optional summer insurance) is basically to protect students from real emergency expenses," he said.

For the 1992-93 school year, optional summer coverage costs were $319.90.

Waiting until a medical condition comes up is too late, Baggott said.

"With insurance, it is necessary to plan ahead, he said.

"You can't buy auto insurance after and accident and get coverage," Baggott said.

Recital draws variety of listeners

By Charlotte Rivers

Classical music and show tunes are an unlikely combination, but two SIUC music instructors will perform Schubert and Gershwin during a recital at 8 p.m. today.

The School of Music faculty recital, which will be performed in the Old Baptist Foundation Recital Hall, will feature soprano Jeanine Wagner and pianist Margaret Simmons.

Both are associate professors at SIUC.

Robert Roubos, director of the school, said Wagner and Simmons are active artists.

"They traveled all over the country last year and this year. They give concerts that are pleasing and of high artistic quality," Roubos said.

Wagner is the 1992-94 winner of the Mu Phi Epsilon's (a professional musician's fraternity) International Competition.

As the winner, Wagner is given the opportunity to perform concerts for two years throughout the United States and Canada.

"I have been to Indiana, California and Texas performing for Mu Phi Epsilon chapters," she said.

But, Wagner said today's recital is not affiliated with the music fraternity.

"It is a part of being an instructor," she said. "Every year we perform in faculty recitals."

Pianist Margaret Simmons and Wagner have worked together for about 16 years. Simmons said she accompanies Wagner on tours.

"This is our only recital here," she said. "We will travel every weekend until Thanksgiving."

Simmons, a voice coach, said traveling and teaching are not difficult because the duo has a repertoire of songs they regularly perform.

The recital is special to sisters Wagner and clarinetist Bernadette Albaugh.

Guest artist Albaugh said they have not performed together for several years.

"Rehearsing has really been great. It is a fun opportunity," she said.

"We have wanted to do something together for a long time. We have not gotten to play together since high school."

Albaugh is a part-time band instructor for Marion elementary schools.

on the nightly news also was in full bloom, he said.

"For about the first nine years of the study, women correspondents on the nightly news were substitutions, not additions," Foote said. "Women are the survivors; ranks of men have severely diminished."

"Network news had to layoff staff, particularly white male correspondents lost out, and women held their own and came out on top."

Foote said his study performs a function — people who are interested can use the data to make arguments.

"The correspondents can say we are not making progress fast enough, and management can say look what we've done," Foote said.

instead of safety hazards, he said.

"Student safety is the primary concern, and we want them to check for building code violations," he said. "We want to make sure the occupants know it's coming."

A major concern, Spiwak said, is that students would be penalized by the inspections for R-1 zoning violations for having more than two unrelated persons living in the residence.

R-1 zoning is another item for discussion, Hall said.

She said because of the current R-1 regulations, many students are forced to live in poorly main-tained houses.

Hall said because only two unrelated students can rent or lease an R-1 residence, many of the homes are out of reach because they are too expensive. Spiwak said the zoning regulations have created a student housing problem.

A possible solution would be for the number of allowable unrelated occupants to be raised, he said.

A problem with the current housing code is enforcement, Steve Rogers, an attorney with Student Legal Assistance, said.

He said giving negligent landlords small fines for violations has not given incentive to keep up properties.

"At some point I think the city has to play hardball with the landlords that are abusing the system," he said.

JUMBLE

THAT SCRAMBLED WORD GAME by Henry Arnold

Unscramble these four Jumbles, one letter to each vowel, to form four ordinary words.

OUMID
YOUTCH

Now arrange the circled letters to form the surprise answer, as suggested by the above cartoon.

Answer here: HE _____

Yesterday's Jumble: PUDDY GOING BICEPS DIVER? Answer: He hoped to make a big splash with the ladies but turned out to be like a BIC DIVER.

YOU KNOW, J.J., I THINK IT'S TIME I GOT OUT OF YOUR HAIR...

DON'T BE SURE, YOU HAVEN'T BEEN ANY TROUBLE, MARK...

WELL, I STILL HAVE TO GET BACK. I'M GOING TO MISS NEW YORK, THOUGH. I FEEL LIKE I BELONG HERE NOW.

WHY? THERE'S A GAY COMMUNITY IN D.C.

WELL, OF COURSE THERE IS. GAYS LIVE EVERYWHERE. IT'S JUST... UM...

IT'S JUST WHAT?

WELL, THE SELECTION. I KNOW, IT'S FABULOUS. IT'S THE SAME WITH THE SHOPS.

Polynice arrested, charged with assault

Los Angeles Times

LOS ANGELES—Olden Polynice of the Detroit Pistons, was suspected of assault with a deadly weapon Monday morning after his girlfriend told police he had pointed a loaded handgun at her outside her home here.

Polynice, 28, was arrested about an hour after the incident at his Los Angeles home and released on $20,000 bail about 11 a.m., Los Angeles Police Department Sgt. Roger Ferguson said.

Yvette Avana, 26, told police that she and Polynice had an argument outside her house about 6 a.m. and that while she was standing outside the car, Polynice retrieved a loaded handgun from somewhere inside the car and pointed it at her, Ferguson said.

Police said Polynice denied pulling a gun, and officers did not find one, Ferguson added.

During his 16 months with the Los Angeles Clippers, Polynice became known for his community service work at a Los Angeles housing project and at local schools.

Last season, he fasted to protest conditions in his native Haiti under the military regime that overthrew a democratically elected government.

His arraignment is scheduled for Oct. 18.

Piazza having banner frosh year

Los Angeles Times

Exactly how productive a freshman year is Mike Piazza having?

The Los Angeles Dodger catcher is about to accomplish something that even such National League rookies of the year as Willie Mays, Frank Robinson, Orlando Cepeda, Willie McCovey, Billy Williams and Johnny Bench couldn't—bat .300-plus, hit 30-plus home runs, and drive in more than 100 runs.

Before this year, Wally Berger was the only National League rookie to have reached all three plateaus, when he batted .310 with 38 homers and 119 RBI for the Boston Braves in 1930.

Piazza and company have to be hoping that the San Francisco Giants will stay in the National League West Division race long enough for the Dodgers to eliminate them during the final series of the year and return the favors of 1991 and '82.

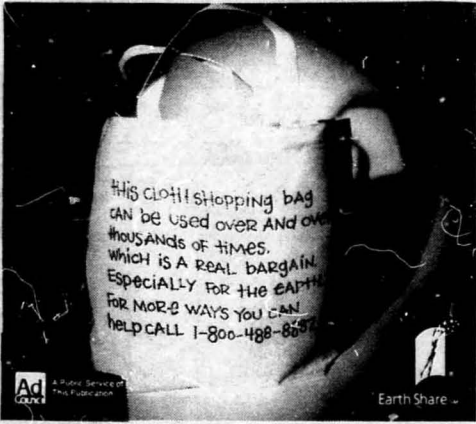

To bee or not to bee: In a recent game against the Texas Rangers, Bo Jackson of the Chicago White Sox retreated to the dugout to avoid a bee, returned to the batter's box, and hit a home run.

The Philadelphia Phillies won't last long in postseason play if they field the way they did against the Atlanta Braves.

The Los Angeles Angels' expansion-team record of 70 victories, set in 1961, would appear to be safe. The Colorado Rockies need to win all five of their remaining games against the Giants and Braves to break it.

The Portland, Maine, franchise that will begin operations in the Class AA Eastern League next year will be known as the Sea Dogs.

will be strength conditioning with weights," Brechtelsbauer said. "No softball equipment will be used because it's against NCAA regulations."

"Tuesday and Thursday is team conditioning with a lot of explosive like activities. This is a critical part of our program."

Looking back at the fall season, Brechtelsbauer said her squad has a long way to go before spring arrives.

"It will be obvious who worked all winter and which ones just got started when the spring starts"

—Kay Brechtelsbauer

"I think we saw a lot of good things and a lot we have to work on. 10-5 is nice, but we'll see tougher competition in the spring," she said.

Since the majority of off-season training will be done individually, Brechtelsbauer said self discipline will key the teams spring success.

"Which ones are motivated to improve on their own will be interesting," she said.

"It will be obvious who worked all winter and which ones just got started when spring starts."

Jets sure to see Moore of Boomer

The Hartford Courant

EAST RUTHERFORD, N.J.—They learned to play football growing up on Long Island.

Boomer Esiason, the husky blond from East Islip, Rob Moore, the lanky speedster from Hempstead.

Separated by 40 miles and seven birthdays, Esiason and Moore never played in the same back yard. But to watch them this season, you would think they have been playing together for years.

Individually, they are talented. Together, they are dangerous.

Esiason to Moore might not be Joe Namath to Don Maynard, yet, but the combination is beginning to be one of the best quarterback-wide receiver combinations the Jets have had in years.

"I think Boomer and I have a kind of nonverbal communication on the field," Moore said after the Jets' 45-7 victory over the Patriots at Giants Stadium Sunday night.

"He's the general out there. He tells us to run our routes the right way and get in position and he'll get you the ball."

Esiason got Moore the ball four times for 40 yards. Moore, who turns 25 Monday, had two receptions for 26 yards as the Jets drove 73 yards on their first possession for a touchdown.

Moore had a 9-yard reception on the Jets' next possession as they drove 43 yards for another touchdown.

Moore's numbers probably would have been better had the game been close. But he didn't mind.

"I'm excited to be where we are right now (tied for the AFC East lead at 2-1)," Moore said. "The offense is really clicking and Boomer's getting the job done."

Moore's season high for receptions is 70 for 987 yards in 1991, his second season after being taken in the supplemental draft in 1990 out of Syracuse.

This season, Moore has 19 receptions for 304 yards and one touchdown.

The Patriots were focused on

Moore from the beginning, but his speed and the accuracy of Esiason (17-for-21, 215 yards, one touchdown) were too much for New England's young secondary.

Moore caught one more pass in the second half, and appeared to have another for a 31-yard touchdown, but the play was negated because of an illegal procedure penalty against the Jets.

The Jets relied mostly on their running game in the second half, but Esiason connected with wide receiver Chris Burkett (four receptions, 66 yards) and tight end Johnny Mitchell (2, 52).

Jets coach Bruce Coslet has stressed his desire to spread the offense, and if Sunday is any indication, the Jets are beginning.

"What can I say, we were a hot team tonight," Esiason said. "Rob did a great job but we also got a lot of other people involved tonight and that's important."

"If we can get more people the ball, it makes us that much more dangerous."

Late night baseball with Bill Murray

Los Angeles Times

In the crazy promotions department, the class-A Fort Myers (Fla.) Miracle may be in a league of its own.

A sampling from The Miami Herald:

"Crazy Promo No. 1: 'Kids for Kids' night. Children took over stadium operations for one night in August, acting as vendors, PA announcers, scoreboard operators, ground crew members, you name it."

"Crazy Promo No. 2: 'What About Bill?' night. A Bill Murray film festival followed one August game."

Patrons were invited to bring lawn chairs and sleeping bags to watch Murray flicks from the outfield until nearly 4 a.m.

"Crazy Promo No. 3: 'Seance' night. After a game, the fans were invited to join hands and participate in a seance."

Clueless: From Frank Gifford's book, "The Whole Ten Yards": "I don't care what Howard Cosell says, most people in the media don't have a clue what's really happening on the field."

Unless you've been part of it, you can't imagine how brutal and violent it is, how loud and confusing it is."

Bush Leaguers? Only five teams have gone from winning 90 games in one season to losing 90 the next.

But Milwaukee did it by losing No. 90 Sunday, and Oakland and Minnesota are only one loss away.

"We're embarrassed," Brewer General Manager Sal Bando said. "If they're not embarrassed, they don't belong in the big leagues."

"I'm really wondering if some of them belong in the big leagues."

Shame on him: Spy magazine made a list of "Pathetic NCAA Violations." Among them is this:

"Middle Tennessee State University, 1987-88 academic year: The head basketball coach gave a prospect's mother a white MTSU teddy bear."

Is that all? Before the Miami Dolphins played the Buffalo Bills Sunday, Dolphin linebacker Bryan Cox verbally trashed everything about B. affalo:

"I don't like the Bills as a team, I don't like the players as people, I don't like the city and I don't like the organization."

No argument: New York Giant linebacker Lawrence Taylor, after hustling Girl Scout cookie orders among his teammates:

"They tell me which ones they want and I tell them how much they're buying."

Job security: When Lou Holtz was coaching football at the University of Arkansas, he once said:

"A lifetime contract for a crach means if you're ahead in the third quarter and moving the ball, they can't fire you."

Quotebook: Cincinnati Bengs' Coach David Shula when asked whether he plans any changes in the offense: "Got any in mind?"

seemed to be able to pass. Can you beat the San Francisco 49ers in the late going?

He did exactly that, setting up a last-minute field goal that gave the Saints their first fourth-quarter points against the 49ers in three years. They had been outscored, 41-0.

"I never had any concern about Wade's ability to get the job done," said Saint Coach Jim Mora, who had lost three in a row to the 49ers.

"He's proven he can do what we want to do. I've seen him from the other side enough times to know that he's a heck of a football player. That last drive was a heck of a job."

Wilson, who completed 18 of 32 for 170 yards, put together the winning drive to set up a field goal with three completions for 33 yards.

San Francisco had not lost to an NFC West team since the Saints beat them 10-3 on Nov. 10, 1991. That loss dropped the 49ers to 4-6, but since then they have had the best record in football — 22-4.

Chicago running back Neal Anderson gained 104 yards on 23 carries against the Tampa Bay Buccaneers — his first 100-yard game since the 1991 playoffs against New Orleans.

Meanwhile, Buccaneer runner Reggie Cobb, who had two 100-yard games against the Bears last year, gained only eight yards in 12 carries Sunday.

The Buccaneers, averaging a league-low 35 yards on the ground in their first two games, gained only 36 against the Bears.

Despite losing to the Saints, San Francisco remains ahead of Buffalo for the best record in the 1990s.

The Bills lost to Miami on Sunday and have a 39-12 regular-season record in the decade. The 49ers are 40-12.

status.

"All players want to play at number one, but then when they get there it is somewhat overpowering," she said. "It might take her the season to learn what it takes, but I think she can do well at the number one spot."

Joseph won 1-2 in singles play while fighting through some pain in her hand.

"We are hoping the swelling and pain is from just playing so much, and not related to the bone chip she had a while ago," Auld said.

Gardaer backed up her impressive doubles showing with a 2-1 singles record. Gardner's only loss came at the hands of a seeded player from Kentucky.

Siatta won 1-1 at flight three and could not finish her third match due to rain.

Milota went 1-1 at the flight four class and also was rained out in her third match.

Rubin joined Milota in flight four, going 1-1 to back up a nice performance in last weekend's tournament.

Auld said Rubin's willingness to try different things has improved her game.

"She's a very coachable player," Auld said. "She understands that she might lose a few matches by trying new things, but in the long run it will benefit her game."

The Salukis play host to Indiana State, Louisville, Memphis State and Southeast Missouri this weekend.
